MIDDLEBURY WINS TRIANGULAR DEBATE

Was the Only College of Three to Win Both Debates

VERMONT DEFEATED HERE

Wetherell Prizes Awarded to Adams '23 and Parry '24

In a spirited debate held in Mead Memorial Chapel Wednesday evening, March 16, Middlebury's affirmative team defeated the negative team from the University of Vermont on the question, "That European immigration into the United State should be further restricted by federal action." At the same hour the negative team of Middlebury won from the St. Lawrence affirmative team at Canton, N. Y. The judges at Middlebury were H. O. Carpenter, and Judge Fred M. Butler of Rutland, and Rev. H. L. Howard of Middlebury. Judge Butler in giving the decision, said that both teams were evenly matched, and only the close vote of two to one decided in Middlebury's favor.

This is the first triangular debate in which Middlebury has participated. Middlebury was the only college to win both debates. The University of Vermont affirmative team lost to the St. Lawrence negative team at Burlington the same night.

The home team consisted of the following men who spoke in the order named, Edgar T. Austin '24, Donald W. Riiley '24, Murray Adams '23, Capt., and Ronald J. Darby, alternate, who spoke in rebuttal. The team from Vermont was comprised of F. S. Pease '21, B. B. Green '21, G. L. Best '21, Capt., and L. J. Doolin '22, alternate. The affirmative maintained that immigrants are coming into the country in excessive numbers, that they are a menace to our political organizatian, and a damage to our economic and social welfare. Instances were cited showing how the immigrants had lowered standards of living. Lowered standards of living, it was contended by the affirmative would endanger the life of the nation. The Vermont men maintained that the present laws were adequate to deal with the situation, that the immigrant was a necessary factor in our national development, and that in the course of time, their living conditions were bettered.

The Professor Wetherell Debating prize was awarded to Murray Adams '23, of the Middlebury Affirmative team and to D. H. Parry '24 of the Middlebury negative team which debated at Canton.

During the periods before and after the main speeches organ selections were rendered by Professor Hathaway and Miss Dorothy Slayton. Prayer was offered by Rev. E. B. Holmes. Professor Everett Skillings acted as Presiding Officer.

Following the debate, a luncheon was served the participants and coaches, Professors Abbott, Harrington, and Kline in Hepburn Social Hall. Professor Davison accompanied the negative team to Canton, N. Y.

DR. THOMAS LEAVES FOR PENN STATE

Tomorrow Morning Set for Departure of President

BEGINS NEW WORK MAY 1

Dr. E. D. Collins, Provost, to Act as Temporary President

John M. Thomas, President of Middlebury College for thirteen years, a period marked in the growth and development of the college, will leave tomorrow morning to assume the duties of President of Pennsylvania State College. Dr. E. D. Collins, provost of the college will act as temporary president until a successor is appointed. Dr. Thomas will stop at New Haven to deliver an address to the student body at Yale, and will then journey to State College, Pa., where he will take up his new duties. Press reports state that the students and faculty of Pennsylvania State college are eagerly awaiting the arrival of Dr. Thomas. He will appear before the college body for the first time May 1, when he will speak at the chapel exercises.

President Thomas has devoted thirteen years of splendid service to the advancement of Middlebury College. During his administration the student body has more than tripled, and the endowment fund increased from a sum of a few hundred thouusand dollars to several millions. Due to his efforts the equipment of the college has materially increased. He has been instrumental in securing bequests for the benefit of the college, and for the erection of buildings. Starr Library, the Warner Science building, Chemistry building, McCullough gymnasium, Hepburn Hall, and the Mead Memorial Chapel were all built during his presidency. These buildings are equal in appointment and equipment to any college buildings in the country.

The President and Mrs. John M. Thomas were given a farewell dinner by the faculty and their wives at Hepburn Hall March 23rd, on which occasion regret was expressed at President Thomas's leaving Middlebury. Professor V. C. Harrington told of the high regard in which President and Mrs. Thomas are held, and wished them success in their new home and at their new work. President Thomas in reply expressed his appreciation of the honor shown him, and declared that his loyalty to Middlebury would continue.

SPRING TRAINING BRINGS OUT 120

Football, Track, and Baseball Men Begin Outdoor Work

FORTY OUT FOR BASEBALL

Squad To Be Cut Next Week---Few Veterans For Infield

Favored by weather conditions common to a much more advanced period in the season, outdoor training for a large field of football, track and baseball candidates commenced last week under the direction of Coaches Morey and Brown. The introduction of an 18-day training period for football men brought out thirty-two aspirants for next fall's 'Varsity, making the total of those at present engaged in some form of supervised athletics 120, undoubtedly the largest number at any one time in the history of the College. Practically every member of last year's squad has reported and their numbers have been swelled by the addition of some new men. The only members of the 1920 squad not enrolled in the training are ex-Captain Mead, Brigham and Keppler, of the graduating class, and a few others whose outside duties prevent attendance at the daily practices.

In installing a spring training program for football Coach Morey has given as his chief object a desire to work with the newer and less experienced men upon whom he intends to rely to a great extent next fall. Because of the short duration of the training period the work of the next week and a half will be extremely concentrated in nature. Omitting the heavier items of the fall practices, Coach Morey will instruct the men in kicking, passing and general handling of the ball. Particular emphasis is being laid on formations. The men are receiving a thorough drilling in defensive tactics and will probably be put through some of the plays which are to be used next fall.

Baseball Cut Next Week

The first cut in the large baseball squad will not be made before another week. Practices on Porter Field this week have been attended by over forty candidates which number includes all but four members of last year's regular outfit and some promising material from the incoming class.

The call for battery candidates brought out ten men in addition to last season's regulars. With Hastings, a former Holy Cross twirler, Perry, from Peekskill Military Academy, Doe, Witham and Gibson together with Hulihan and Elmer of the 1920 team, the Coach should have little difficulty in developing a strong pitching department. Those out for the receiving position are Mead, a last year's letter man, Lobo, Carroll and Brainerd, the first two of whom will probably land regular berths.

Few Infield Veterans

For the infield positions Coach Morey will have to choose from a dozen or more aspirants, two of whom, Capt. Timberman, first sacker, and Stockwell who played second base on last year's team, have had college baseball experience. As it is, if both men are retained on this season's nine, it will necessitate a shifting of positions as Stockwell will only be available for the first base position because of injuries inflicted on his knee last fall in football. Some of the other infield

Save The Trees

It is with feelings of regret and no slight apprehension that many view the steadily diminishing number of shade trees on the lower campus when the work of replacement continues to remain at a standstill. The cutting down of two trees in front of Starr Hall last week because of their decayed condition, brings the number of those destroyed within the recollection of the two upper classes up to eight or more while at the present writing only one of the trees planted by recent graduating classes is living. At this rapid rate of diminution one may readily foresee within a comparatively short time a campus stripped of much of the luxuriant verdure which now makes it one of the most beautiful in New England, if not in the entire country.

The danger, to-day grave, is one which will be rendered vastly more acute with the passage of each succeeding year if precautionary measures are not taken immediately. Frankly, it does not seem that the College has yet taken account of the time requisite to replace the decaying sentinals of the lower campus with others of like grandeur and magnificence. To perpetuate this treasured heirloom of the past is a sacred trust which will not thinkingly be avoided by those in whose keeping it now reposes.

Thinking Things Through

Reflecting an opposite tendency in undergraduate thinking from the startling drift of things presented in recent issues of the Atlantic Monthly and the Saturday Evening Post, last week's convention at Harvard of "college liberal clubs" is noteworthy. Seventeen colleges and universities were represented at this gathering whose announced purpose was "the creation of a national organization for the discussion of the liberal standpoint in social, political and international affairs".

Laying aside the common prejudices against the word "liberalism"—which is all too frequently and unjustly confused with "radicalism"—it is surprising how clear-thinking people can fail to see in this principle just what should be inculcated in youthful minds, in order to offset the evil and undermining influence of the day. In our thinking, too many of us follow the line of least resistence. Rather than submit to the cold hard test of reason and analysis the mass of information that reaches us daily, we are inclined to accept the beliefs of others; thus, making ourselves the unresisting victims of the specious doctrines of propagandists, terrorists and other designing "isms". So much for those who are at least endeavoring to keep abreast with the march of everyday events. For a vast number of others there is the need of a first awakening to the indispensibility of reliable information leading to a familiarity with each and all of the problems which are perplexing the ablest minds of the age.

Liberalism implies open-mindedness as opposed to any narrowness or bigotry in ideas or doctrines. As world leaders of to-morrow, college men and women of to-day need to take a livelier interest in current affairs. They need, furthermore, to acquire the habit of doing their own thinking, of searching out the whys and wherefore and of establishing their own judgments. Was ever a program conceived more completely embodying these sins than that of this recently-formed organization, fostered entirely by college students, which espouses an open-minded spirit of investigation, which "subscribes to no political creed or ism" and which aims to eventually "unite in one body all those college students of America who wish to take a more active part in the life of their community"?

Professor Julian Moreno-Lacalle was recently made an honorary member of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity.

The Periscope

We have come to the point where we feel that we must admit more truth than poetry to the statement that F. P. A. once made regarding his daily stint—that it would be the height of grand and glorious feelingness to return from vacation to find a galley or more of extra copy awaiting us.

The opening of the spring term fulfilled another tradition, namely that there must always be snow on the ground when we—speaking collectively—return from the Easter Recess.

We can't blame them for holding football practice last week. It was more seasonable than baseball. Some day, the weather here will catch up to the calendar.

Can This Be The Millenium?

"SLAIN PEONS FORCED TO DIG OWN GRAVES"
—N Y. Tribune

We had been told that each recitation costs about twenty-six cents and still we cut. What is twenty-six cents! But Sunday President Ferry of Hamilton College told us that experts have placed the value of recitations in the future life as high as forty dollars. Thus present and future total $40.26! That is too much money to lose in one single hour.

Fifth Ave. on Easter morning has nothing on our own chapel the first Sunday after spring recess.

According to the New York Tribune railroad workers wages have been reduced "from ten to seventeen cents an hour".—To our own feeble intellect this seems fair enough, under the circumstances.

History Repeats Itself

"O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursel's as others see us!"

Middlebury College has organized a Discussion Club for the purpose of debating subjects of interest to the college—undergraduates, alumni, or faculty—and to clarify opinions of the student body, the club acting as a deliberative rather than a legislative body. At the first meeting about ninety men, including nineteen members of the faculty, attended. The topic for the first meeting was "College Advertising"; for the second meeting, "How can college spirit best be developed?"
—Tufts Weekly, Mar 16, 1921

The Glee Club trip throws rather manifold responsibilities upon us. Ye Ed. is gone and Stockwell took the most brilliant one-third of our Astronomy class with him when he left.

Notice!

Monday we found a lip stick (We speak with candor) upon our campus. Loser may claim same without payment of a reward. No questions asked!

No, gentle reader, the canes which have made their appearance on the campus are not a disguise. You are not expected to greet each bearer as though he were an alumnus.

'Twas Ever Thus

At home we found that the village library had degenerated into a notorious meeting place.—Then we saw the play, "Miss Lulu Bett" and watched the audience smile knowingly when Diana every night told the family she had to go to the library.—And here in Middlebury * * *

It was a sore temptation to print aur entire colyum this week in this black face type in honor of the porter who served us so efficiently on the return trip to Vermont. K. A. B.

William V. Hagar, '09

William V. Hagar, a graduate of Middlebury College in the class of '09, died at the home of his parents in Middlebury, Thursday March 24, 1921, after a four years' illness.

Mr. Hagar was born in Weybridge, Vt., and was educated in the school of that town and Middlebury. After his graduation from Middlebury College he secured a position in the Census Bureau at Washington, D. C. While working for the government he took a post graduate course at the University of Washington, fitting himself as a civil engineer, which vocation he later followed. He worked for the government on the Canadian Boundary Survey one season and then returned to Washington where he entered the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey service, which carried him to Florida, Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines and American cities on the coast. He was promoted to the rank of First Officer, and in 1917 he was commissioned by President Wilson as Junior Hydragraphic and Geodetic Engineer.

The strenuous nature of his work resulted in illness which developed into tuberculosis. He cheerfully fought the disease until his death in March.

Funeral services were held at the home of his parents, March 27th. He is survived by a wife Mrs. May I. Hagar of Wilmington, Vt. He was a member of the Kappa Delta Rho fraternity.

To President Thomas
Leaving Middlebury for Penn State

This poem was written by Katherine Lee Bates, who received the degree of Litt. D. from Middlebury, for the Boston Alumni banquet given Apr. 2, 1921, honor of President Thomas.

Life, Vicegerent of God,
What is the meed for a man
Who has done his work with a will,
Labored in shower and sun,
Hardened his dream to a plan,
Driven his plan into deed,
Made fruitful the earth he trod;
Whose city is set on a hill,
Whose crown of honor is won?
What is the toiler's meed?

Life, Vicegerent of God,
Smiles, though his mouth is grim.
"Since struggle hath made him strong,
A leader and shaper of men,
This is the meed for him,
Another and harder task.
Once more shall his feet be shod
For the heavy tral and long.
Having served, he shall serve again,
Sole meed that high hearts ask."

PRESIDENT FERRY MAKES PLEA FOR BROAD LIVES

Hamilton College Executive Delivers Address at Vespers

President Ferry of Hamilton College was the speaker at Vespers last Sunday evening. He chose as his theme the fact that life, like a building, possesses three dimensions, length, breadth, and height. The first of these is represented by the early period of life when one is preparing for a life work. It is then that the way is paved for the broadening experiences of manhood and womanhood. Upon the thoroughness of preparation depends the success of this later period. Height signifies the spiritual development and without this third dimension there is no structure. His sermon was very forcefully delivered and his abundant source of illustrations from statistics and facts of life, strengthened the presentation of his message.

SUNDAY NOON CLUB HOLDS APRIL 1 PARTY

The members of the Sunday Noon Club enjoyed a most novel April Fool party at the Baptist church last Friday evening. April Fool games were played most of the evening and refreshments appropriate to the day were served, a certain number of the ice cream cones being filled with cotton instead of ice cream.

The chaperons were Dr. and Mrs. V. C. Harrington, Professor and Mrs. H. P. Williamson de Visme and Professor E. Skillings. William Huggard '20, former president and Alice Wilson '19, former secretary of the Club were guests of the occasion.

Joseph F. McDermott, '19

Word was received before the Easter vacation of the death of Joseph Francis McDermott of the class of 1919. His death was the result of an operation for appendicitis.

McDermott graduated from the high school in Fitchburg, Mass., in 1914. He later entered Middlebury College with the class of 1919. When war broke out he enlisted in the navy and as a pharmacist mate, second class, served 23 months, much of the time overseas. At the time of the armistice he was discharged and enrolled at Tufts Medical school.

He was a member of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity at Middlebury and of the Alpha Kappa fraternity at Tufts. He is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. McDermott and a brother William M. McDermott, all of Fitchburg.

William Huggard '20 and Philip Locklin '20 have been visiting among their many college friends.

JUNIORS NAMED FOR 1922 PLAY CAST

Brautigam, Ross, and Gaylor Have Leading Parts—Work on Play Progressing Rapidly

Tryouts of candidates for parts in the cast of the Junior Play were held just before the spring recess and the selection of the cast was made after keen competition and careful deliberation. The comparative inconsequence of the women's roles made the selections especially difficult. The dramatis personae as announced by Professor William S. Burrage is as follows:

Mr. Marsland	Jack Horner
Harry Marsland	Edmund Stockwell
Mr. Cattermole	Paul Ross
Douglas Cattermole	Harry Brown
Rev. Robert Spaulding	Karl Brautigam
Mr. Gibson	Eugene Robinson
John	Charles Reinbrecht
Edith Marsland	Dorothy Douglas
Eva Webster	Madeline McDonald
Miss Ashford	Madeleine Gaylor
Mrs. Stead	Margaret Billings

The services of Miss Emily F. Cass have been accepted as prompter and Professor William S. Burrage who has drilled many former class plays, will direct the training of the actors.

Rehearsals were begun immediately after college opened and are now being held regularly every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Professor Burrage's residence on Storrs Ave. Thus far the work has been confined entirely to the first two acts and in these considerable progress has been made.

John Hawtrey's "The Private Secretary" which has been selected as this year's Junior Play is a farcial comedy, full of action and dependent for its success upon rapidity of movement, and the ingenuity of its situations. It is the cleverly humorous portrayal of the principle characters, those of Spalding, the ministerial "secretary", played by Brautigam; Cattermole, "an uncle from India", played by Ross; and Miss Ashworth, "a sentimental governess turned spiritualist", impersonated by Miss Gaylor, that has made the play one of the best laugh raisers of the English speaking stage.

The plot is simple and based almost entirely upon mistaken identity and Hawtrey's dexterous handling of ingenious situations has done more to secure the wide popularity his play has enjoyed for many years, than the mere cleverness of his lines.

"The Private Secretary" differs from Junior presentation of the past half-dozen years in regard to the exceptional prominence of the male parts, and the comparative insignificance of the opportunities for women characters.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN TO SPEAK HERE OCT. 31

According to an announcement by Dr. V. C. Harrington of the entertainment committee, William Jennings Bryan, noted orator, and three times democratic candidate for the presidency, has been secured as a speaker at the first entertainment course to be given October 31, 1921.

The regular meeting of the Undergraduate Association, to have been held last night, has been postponed until Tuesday, April 12. Because there was little business of importance to be transacted and because of absences due to the Glee Club trip, it was thought wise to make this postponement.

candidates who give promise are Gallagher, Whitmore, Weeks and Vose. The candidates for the other fielding positions include Fletcher, P. Ross, Sevigny, White, May, Sturtevant, Hardy, Way, Crew, Drost, Aines, de Lancy, Calef and Wilson.

Altogether the number of track candidates is about forty. Training for the runners began late last week on the cinder path and since then the field event men have also been moved to Porter Field. Among the several veterans who will constitute a nucleus for this year's team are Capt. Robinson, in the sprints and hurdles; Darby, middle-distance and sprints; Shelvey and Cole, distance; Potratz and Gollnick in the weights and Baldwin in the hurdles and discus.

New Track Men Promising

Coach Brown is looking for good results from several of this year's additions to the squad among whom are Hastings, pole-vaulter; Hunt, middle-distance runner; H. E. Brown, shot-put and Peck in the hurdles and broad jump. Just at present there is a shortage of good material in the last two events named and in the middle-distance. The addition of a relay race in the triangular meet with Vermont and Norwich will make necessary double the ordinary number of quarter-milers.

Tulley, Crane, Osteyee, Wells and Stephan represent the field from which a running-mate for Capt. Robinson and Darby must be picked for the sprints. As yet but little is known of the ability of any one of that number although Tulley, formerly of Middlebury High School, took one or two firsts in last year's Interscholastic meet.

Other candidates for various events include Cohen and Cook in the high jump; Gray, Hall and Whitney, middle distance; Whitten, Drost, Carlton and Bailey in the pole vault; Kendall, Davis, Squires, Thompson, Krichbaum, Burckes, Wexler, Toleman, Lewis and Jenkins, distance.

Sages Give Informal Dance

The informal dance given Saturday evening in the gymnasium, from seven-thirty to eleven-forty o'clock by the Sages with the Waubanakees and Delta Taus as guests, was attended by about forty couples.

Music was furnished by a five piece college orchestra. The gymnasium was trimmed with Middlebury and other college banners. Punch was served during the evening.

The chaperones were Professor and Mrs. Swett and Coach and Mrs. Brown.

James Burches and Leon F. McFee visited friends on Munger street Sunday afternoon.

Miss Marian Mathews of Meredith, N. H., was the guest of Margaret Dickinson '22 last week.
